As a general guide, youth who have shown exceptional service to their school, social, athletic, civic or church institutions will be considered. Consideration will be given to individuals who have shown perseverance and determination, whether of a public or personal nature.

Judges will consider also, a life style, an attitude, or series of small accomplishments that in total shall be meritorious, on an equal basis with one singular achievement.

Although all circumstances will be considered, it is not a requisite that achievements are made in the climate of physical or economic adversity.
